Salam Air takes to the skies for the first time

On the occasion of the Sultanate’s 46th anniversary, Salam Air, Oman’s new low-cost airline, commenced operations this January. Salam Air’s focus is to make air travel more affordable to more people so they can fly and enjoy new travel experiences.

The Airline’s first aircraft, an A320, incorporates a cabin with 174 seats to allow efficient operations in synergy with its business model.

While Salam Air’s network and fleet are taking shape, the carrier has started operating to Dubai and Salalah from Oman’s capital, Muscat as its first destinations.

Moving forward, we will be hearing more from this young LCC and its achievements.

Wishing Salam Air all the success!

Welcome aboard, Salam Air!
